

DAN MELER CONSULTING

Mr. Meler has over 40 years experience in the construction industry dating back to 1964. His experience includes building of residential, civil, commercial, educational, hospitality, healthcare (OSHPD), datacenters, manufacturing, food processing facilities and many public projects including airports, civic centers, courthouses, police stations and treatment plants. He has completed projects for private owners and public agencies, including cities, counties, states, and the federal government. While starting his career as an apprentice carpenter he has held positions as a project engineer, superintendent, project manager and estimator. The last twenty-five years of his career he has been the Operations manager for two of the largest construction companies in the United States. In this position he has had bottom line responsibility for over 9.5 billion dollars worth of construction. He has been an officer of both of these companies and has been an integral part of their strategic planning and profitable growth. He is a member of the Disputes Resolution Board Foundation and has completed current DBR and DRA training for Cal Trans and is on their approved list. He is familiar with the Mediation, Arbitration process and has set on Disputes Resolution Boards in the past. Mr. Meler has testified in litigation and as an expert witness many times. He currently has a consulting business specializing in assisting owners, general contractors, bonding and insurance companies and design professionals with claims, scheduling and claims avoidance training.

Mr. Meler's many years of hands on experience gives him the ability to review and provide practical resolutions to many problems that are inherently encountered in the construction industry today.
